'THE WORLD STAGE' SHOWCASES WORKS BY SIGNIFICANT AMERICAN ARTISTS FROM WARHOL TO WILEY

The World Stage: Contemporary Art from the Collections of Jordan. D Schnitzer and His Family Foundation

assembles works by some of today's rising stars like Kehinde Wiley and Mickalene Thomas alongside prominent names from the 20th-century art canon such as Andy Warhol and Robert Rauschenberg. Featuring 90 works in a variety of media by 37 artists, The World Stage will be on view at the Nevada Museum of Art in downtown Reno from March 14 through May 24, 2020.

Reno, Nev. (February 20, 2020)– This spring, the voices of rising contemporary American artists converge with art world heavyweights for a new exhibition at the Nevada Museum of Art in Reno. The World Stage: Contemporary Art from the Collections of Jordan. D Schnitzer and His Family Foundation showcases more than 90 works by 34 renowned American artists. Artworks by the likes of Andy Warhol, Helen Frankenthaler, Robert Rauschenberg, and others from the 20th-century art canon ignite a conversation with some of today's up-and-coming global influencers such as Wendy Red Star, Mickalene Thomas, and Kehinde Wiley. Organized by the Nevada Museum of Art, The World Stage will be on view at the downtown Reno, Nevada museum March 14 through May 24, 2020.

Drawn from the collection of renowned collector Jordan Schnitzer, The World Stage includes works by some of the most important American artists from the past 50 years. Though unified by the country in which they live, these artists possess widely diverse backgrounds, worldviews, and approaches to artmaking.

The World Stage also alludes to Schnitzer himself, who has had a global impact on the contemporary art community. Schnitzer, a native Oregonian, grew up surrounded by art. He collected his first piece when he was 14 years old, and since then, his collection has grown to more than 14,000 objects. Schnitzer has made it a priority to make his collection available and accessible to everyone, including Northern Nevadans.

“From the monumental assemblage work of Leonardo Drew, the striking portraits by Hung Liu, the power figure sculptures of Vanesa German, the interior worlds of Mickalene Thomas’ collages, or the spiritual work of Native American artist Edgar Heap of Birds, the over 80 artworks in this powerful exhibition inspire us to reflect on the incredible beauty, diversity, and complexities of our time,” Schnitzer said of the exhibition.

Schnitzer supports numerous art museums that bear the family name in Oregon, Washington, and beyond. However, he still makes his collection available for other museums to borrow. Schnitzer and his staff have facilitated more than 140 exhibitions at 90 museums— including The World Stage, organized by the Nevada Museum of Art.

The exhibition features artworks in a variety of mediums including painting, installation, and mixed media, with a special focus on prints made in a wide range of techniques. The title of the exhibition, The World Stage, is borrowed from the name of a series of paintings by Kehinde Wiley, an artist best known for his presidential portrait of Barack Obama, which hangs in the National Portrait Gallery. In recognition of Wiley’s significant work, the Museum will screen the film Kehinde Wiley: An Economy of Grace as an evening program on March 26. The film follows Wiley as he embarks on an exciting new project: a series of classical portraits of African-American women.

Over the course of the exhibition the Nevada Museum of Art will offer a diversity of engaging programs on a variety of themes presented in The World Stage. Highlights include a talk by Schnitzer and a Members’ Preview featuring the music of Só Sol, a husband and wife duo whose unique style combines folk with dark Americana and Brazilian psych.
